MICHAEL LEON BELL; GUSTAVO BENITEZ-BARREUTA, a.k.a. "Guache"; SANTIAGO BENITEZ-MARTINEZ; ENRIQUE CARDONA, JR., a.k.a. "Ricky"
"Gordo"; [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] VICTOR HUGO ESPINO-OLVERA; JOSHUA
CHRISTOPHER ESQUIVEL, a.k.a. "JJ"; [REDACTED] CARLOS
HERIBERTO HERNANDEZ JONGUITUD, a.k.a. "Lentes"; ELIAS ANTONIO
HERNANDEZ; JOSEPH HERNANDEZ, a.k.a. "Gordo"; [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] MARIA GUADALUPE RIVERA-
GARCIA, a.k.a. "Guacha"; CARLOS ALBERTO ZAMUDIO;

and others known and unknown, were members of a drug distribution conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute and to distribute more than five (5) kilograms of cocaine; more than (500) grams of methamphetamine, heroin, and other illegal narcotics. The drug distribution network of this conspiracy reached from the United States/Mexico border to numerous distributors in the Austin, Texas area.

Telephones were utilized extensively by members of the conspiracy in order for co-conspirators to coordinate drug transactions. Co-conspirators would learn when drugs were available, the quantity and quality of those drugs, the price to be charged, and the location where the transaction could be conducted.

Objective of the Conspiracy

The objective of the conspiracy was to make money for the co-conspirators from the sale of controlled substances without being caught by law enforcement. In order to ensure that conspirators maximized their chances of avoiding detection by law enforcement, a number of protective measures were utilized in order to defeat tactics which law enforcement might utilize to uncover and curtail their illegal activities. These protective measures included the use of coded language over the telephone; the use of cell phones that could be easily discarded and/or placed under false names and addresses; and, the use of multiple vehicles. In addition to protective measures regarding phones, co-conspirators exercised protective measures while driving to and from drug-related meetings. These measures included being very vigilant for any law enforcement surveillance and conducting "heat checks" by making sudden evasive maneuvers to detect any law enforcement surveillance following them. Co-conspirators would look at and into surrounding vehicles to determine if they might be unmarked police vehicles monitoring their movements.

Coded Language

Coded language was commonly utilized during drug-related phone calls in an effort to make the drug-related nature of the phone calls less obvious. Suppliers and customers would use abbreviated numbers to indicate the quantity and price for cocaine.

The type of drug ordered would also be indicated by separate code words. Cocaine would sometimes be referred to as "trabajo" (work); "blanca" (white); "mitad" (half); "pintura" (paint); "trocka/troquita" (truck); "perico" (parakeet); "apples;" "pan" (bread); "llantas" (tires); "dove;" "vaca" (cow); "bacerros" (calves); "suaves" (soft ones); or "white girl."

Amounts of drugs would be indicated by words such as "mitad" (half); "½ a car" for ½ kilogram; "cebolla" (onion) or "esquina" (corner) for an ounce; "pelota" (ball) for 1/8 ounce; "Nine" or "nine pack" for ¼ kilogram; "baby" for 4 ounces; "quadros" (squares) for 1 kilogram; michelda for ½ kilogram. Good quality drugs would be referred to "bonitas" (pretty ones); "escalitas" (scales); "hard;" "avion" (airplane); and, bad quality as "crumbles" or "reebok."

Methamphetamine would often be referred to as "ventanas" (windows); "windows computer;" "ice;" "hielo" (ice); "glass;" "windshield;" and, "frios" (cold ones) among other terms.

Heroin was at times referred to as “chino” (china); “Moreno” (brown); “trocka” (truck); and, “black.”

Cash or currency was referred to as “papeles” (papers); “titulos” (titles); “cheques” (checks); and, “mostaza” (mustard).

Cell Phones

The use of cell phones made it easier for co-conspirators to defeat tactics utilized by law enforcement to uncover their activities. Co-conspirators frequently obtained cell phones under false names and addresses or anonymous identities, since, unlike a home telephone, a cell phone does not need to be connected to a specific address. Suppliers would frequently change their cell phones which made it more difficult for law enforcement to keep up with each conspirator’s currently utilized telephone number. When co-conspirators suspected that their previously used cell phone telephone number might have been compromised, such as when one of their customers was arrested, they could easily quit using or drop a cell phone and quickly obtain a new cell phone.

COUNT ONE

Conspiracy to Possess with Intent to Distribute and to Distribute Five (5) kilograms or more of Cocaine, Five Hundred (500) grams or more of Methamphetamine and Heroin [21 U.S.C. §846{841(a)(1)&(b)(1)(A, B & C)}]
